

TRIED TO LYNCH HIM.

Angry Tenants Thought Rosenbluth Fired His Store.

Chased Through the Street, He Took Refuge in a Police Station.

Many Small Fires, One of Which May Cause a Man's Death.

Several fires gave the Department plenty of work this morning. One family was rescued when all but overcome by smoke. A half a dozen people had narrow escapes. One man was chased by an excited crowd of people; who thought he had fired the house. In another fire a man was burned so badly that he will die.

Simon Rosenbluth, his wife, Fanny, and three children—John, four; Annie, two years; and Bertha, seven weeks—live in the "Mixed Ale" flats at 817 Tenth avenue.

Rosenbluth keeps a crockery store on the ground floor, and his family live in the rear of the place. Simon has for a partner his brother, Herman, who lives with his family a few doors away at 823 Tenth avenue.

Policeman Lanahan was standing on the corner of Fifty-fifth street at 2 o'clock this morning and saw the glare of flames through the crockery shop window. He blew his whistle, and Policemen McGinley and Barrett, on adjoining posts, ran towards the burning building.

Lanahan got to the rear door in the hall and succeeded in breaking it open. The place was filled with smoke, and the flames were eating up the wall from the place where the fire had evidently started in one corner of the building.

The Rosenbluths were found in bed overcome by the smoke. The three policemen got them out to the pavement, where they soon recovered, and were taken to the apartments of Herman Rosenbluth.

While Lanahan was breaking into the store, the fire had spread to the rear side of the building and getting the shoemaker out, the other policemen went upstairs to arouse the tenants.

There was a wild fight to the roof and fire-escapes. All got out of the house safely, but the fire was still burning. The firemen had to work for some time after they had done $100 damage.

When the fire was all over, Rosenbluth went around to see how much damage had been done. There were about fifteen tenants standing in front of the house talking in an excited manner. As soon as they caught sight of Rosenbluth, they cried:

"There's the man who set fire to his store for the insurance!"

He tried to hear any more. He started down Tenth avenue on a wild run. After him followed the excited tenants howling like mad. One of them carried an axe, and the others had clubs.

Herman ran on until he reached the West Forty-ninth street police station. There he felt exhausted on the floor with quivering limbs and aching head.

He begged the Sergeant to save his life. He was quieted after awhile, and told that no one could hurt him. He started back for his home, but it was hours before he had courage enough to enter it.

He didn't know how to get home. He thought of the fire, and the cost of a man's life, started at 6 o'clock in the old-fashioned, three-story, red frame house at 817 Tenth street.

Baptiste Amorette, a Frenchwoman, who lives on the ground floor of the place, was awakened by the screams of a man. Going to the second floor, she found a room in the back of the house all afire, and the flames were rolling on the floor, wrapped in flames.

The pieces of a lamp lay on the floor near the bed. It looked as though the man had kicked over the lamp from a chair in his sleep.

Mrs. Amorette ran out and got policeman Madden, who turned in an alarm. When the policeman reached the house, with the firemen, the burning man could not be found. The flames in the room were extinguished, and the house searched from top to bottom. Still there was no sight of Palmone.

Finally the policeman found him in a wooded in the next yard. The clothing had been entirely burned from his body, and the flesh was falling off.

The injured man was taken to New York Hospital, where his head, arms and body were found to be horribly burned, and it was said that the man could not live. The flames did $50 damage.

Fire broke out in a grocery store on the ground floor of the five-story tenement-house at 67 Beach street early this morning. The store is owned by Mrs. Lyons, who lives in the room behind it with her two-year-old daughter.

Mrs. Lyons awoke, smelled smoke and found that the fire was in flames. She caught her child in her arms and ran to the front door. But that door was locked, and she had to break through the flames were creeping nearer and nearer the woman and child, and Mrs. Lyons was jumping on the bed beside her.

Policeman McKeever arrived, battered the door down, and dragged mother and child out.

The people in the upper part of the house into a wild panic before they got out. The flames were confined to the ground floor and did $50 damage.

A fire that started in the tenement-house at 215 Henry street broke out at 4 o'clock this morning in the apartments of Henry Keaton, on the first floor. It was caused by his children playing with matches. An alarm was turned in and the fire ended when before any considerable damage had been done.

A fire that did $150 damage started in the apartments of A. Fougall, on the top floor of the three-story tenement-house, 233 West Thirty-third street, at 8 o'clock this morning. The cause and insurance are unknown.

THIS SOUBRETTE A FIGHTER.

First Fought a Waiter and Then a Policeman.

An Early Morning Row That De-lighted "Night Owls."

Policeman Edward Keating, of the East Twenty-second street station, with his uniform coat torn and several buttons missing, appeared in Yorkville Court this morning as complainant against a young man and woman named respectively Joseph Donnelly, twenty-one years, of 459 Third avenue, and Kate Daily, aged twenty-five, who refused to give her address.

He found them fighting and rolling on the sidewalk in front of a clothing store at Twenty-sixth street and Third avenue at 4 o'clock this morning. Donnelly claimed to be a waiter, while the woman said she was a soubrette in a Brooklyn theatre.

The spectacle of a man and woman scuffling together on the street attracted quite a crowd of "night owls," who formed a ring and encouraged the fighters. The noise they made brought Keating to the scene. He parted the fighters and held on to the man and woman.

While the policeman was questioning the soubrette suddenly became furious, and turning her attention to the officer, began to claw at him with her nails. To defend himself from her attack, Keating had to release the man and turn his attention to Kate. She kicked and scratched, and in the struggle she pulled off several buttons from the sleeve of his coat.

Another officer finally appeared on the scene, and the station-house. The soubrette fought the entire way. She was brought before Judge Voorsluys, Donnelly said the whole trouble was because he had refused to treat her to a drink.

He said that he was coming along the avenue when she accosted him and asked him to give her a whiskey. On his refusal he said she attacked him. Justice Voorsluys fined the soubrette $10 and Donnelly $5.

HAS A DUAL HUSBAND.

Mrs. Lederman's Allegation in Her Suit for Divorce.

Emma Lederman, of 187 Orchard street, has brought an action for an absolute divorce on the statutory grounds, through Lawyer Louis Steckler, of 275 Broadway, against her husband, Ernest Lederman.

The complaint states that the parties were married in February, 1891, and that shortly afterwards Lederman abandoned his wife, and in the year 1893 was discovered living with another woman in this city as his husband.

In the complaint it is stated that while she is positive that he is known as another woman's husband, she is unable to give his name, and that she has since then lived with him as her husband's wife, but, upon information, charges that the Christian name of the woman is "Lena."

The papers have been served upon Lederman, but up to the present time he has not interposed any defense.

WHOSE BABY GIRL?

Police Looking for the Woman Who Deserted Her in a Hotel.

If the richly dressed woman who left a two-months-old girl baby in the waiting-room of the Central Road Hotel, at 146 Liberty street, at 11 o'clock yesterday morning would return and claim the child, the police would be very glad to see her.

The police are trying to discover the whereabouts of the mother, but so far have not succeeded. The child, which is handsomely dressed, was taken to Police Headquarters yesterday afternoon by Lena Weckesser, one of the servants in the hotel, and this morning was removed to the Ward's Island infant asylum.

"The World's" New Uptown Office.

"The World's" Uptown Office has moved into its new quarters at the junction of Broadway and Sixth avenue, at the corner of the five-story tenement-house at 67 Beach street early this morning. The store is owned by Mrs. Lyons, who lives in the room behind it with her two-year-old daughter.

Mrs. Lyons awoke, smelled smoke and found that the fire was in flames. She caught her child in her arms and ran to the front door. But that door was locked, and she had to break through the flames were creeping nearer and nearer the woman and child, and Mrs. Lyons was jumping on the bed beside her.

Policeman McKeever arrived, battered the door down, and dragged mother and child out.

The people in the upper part of the house into a wild panic before they got out. The flames were confined to the ground floor and did $50 damage.

A fire that started in the tenement-house at 215 Henry street broke out at 4 o'clock this morning in the apartments of Henry Keaton, on the first floor. It was caused by his children playing with matches. An alarm was turned in and the fire ended when before any considerable damage had been done.

A fire that did $150 damage started in the apartments of A. Fougall, on the top floor of the three-story tenement-house, 233 West Thirty-third street, at 8 o'clock this morning. The cause and insurance are unknown.

THIS SOUBRETTE A FIGHTER.

First Fought a Waiter and Then a Policeman.

An Early Morning Row That De-lighted "Night Owls."

Policeman Edward Keating, of the East Twenty-second street station, with his uniform coat torn and several buttons missing, appeared in Yorkville Court this morning as complainant against a young man and woman named respectively Joseph Donnelly, twenty-one years, of 459 Third avenue, and Kate Daily, aged twenty-five, who refused to give her address.

He found them fighting and rolling on the sidewalk in front of a clothing store at Twenty-sixth street and Third avenue at 4 o'clock this morning. Donnelly claimed to be a waiter, while the woman said she was a soubrette in a Brooklyn theatre.

The spectacle of a man and woman scuffling together on the street attracted quite a crowd of "night owls," who formed a ring and encouraged the fighters. The noise they made brought Keating to the scene. He parted the fighters and held on to the man and woman.

While the policeman was questioning the soubrette suddenly became furious, and turning her attention to the officer, began to claw at him with her nails. To defend himself from her attack, Keating had to release the man and turn his attention to Kate. She kicked and scratched, and in the struggle she pulled off several buttons from the sleeve of his coat.

Another officer finally appeared on the scene, and the station-house. The soubrette fought the entire way. She was brought before Judge Voorsluys, Donnelly said the whole trouble was because he had refused to treat her to a drink.

He said that he was coming along the avenue when she accosted him and asked him to give her a whiskey. On his refusal he said she attacked him. Justice Voorsluys fined the soubrette $10 and Donnelly $5.

HAS A DUAL HUSBAND.

Mrs. Lederman's Allegation in Her Suit for Divorce.

Emma Lederman, of 187 Orchard street, has brought an action for an absolute divorce on the statutory grounds, through Lawyer Louis Steckler, of 275 Broadway, against her husband, Ernest Lederman.

The complaint states that the parties were married in February, 1891, and that shortly afterwards Lederman abandoned his wife, and in the year 1893 was discovered living with another woman in this city as his husband.

In the complaint it is stated that while she is positive that he is known as another woman's husband, she is unable to give his name, and that she has since then lived with him as her husband's wife, but, upon information, charges that the Christian name of the woman is "Lena."

The papers have been served upon Lederman, but up to the present time he has not interposed any defense.

WHOSE BABY GIRL?

Police Looking for the Woman Who Deserted Her in a Hotel.

If the richly dressed woman who left a two-months-old girl baby in the waiting-room of the Central Road Hotel, at 146 Liberty street, at 11 o'clock yesterday morning would return and claim the child, the police would be very glad to see her.

The police are trying to discover the whereabouts of the mother, but so far have not succeeded. The child, which is handsomely dressed, was taken to Police Headquarters yesterday afternoon by Lena Weckesser, one of the servants in the hotel, and this morning was removed to the Ward's Island infant asylum.

"The World's" New Uptown Office.

"The World's" Uptown Office has moved into its new quarters at the junction of Broadway and Sixth avenue, at the corner of the five-story tenement-house at 67 Beach street early this morning. The store is owned by Mrs. Lyons, who lives in the room behind it with her two-year-old daughter.

Mrs. Lyons awoke, smelled smoke and found that the fire was in flames. She caught her child in her arms and ran to the front door. But that door was locked, and she had to break through the flames were creeping nearer and nearer the woman and child, and Mrs. Lyons was jumping on the bed beside her.

Policeman McKeever arrived, battered the door down, and dragged mother and child out.

The people in the upper part of the house into a wild panic before they got out. The flames were confined to the ground floor and did $50 damage.

A fire that started in the tenement-house at 215 Henry street broke out at 4 o'clock this morning in the apartments of Henry Keaton, on the first floor. It was caused by his children playing with matches. An alarm was turned in and the fire ended when before any considerable damage had been done.

A fire that did $150 damage started in the apartments of A. Fougall, on the top floor of the three-story tenement-house, 233 West Thirty-third street, at 8 o'clock this morning. The cause and insurance are unknown.

THIS SOUBRETTE A FIGHTER.

First Fought a Waiter and Then a Policeman.

An Early Morning Row That De-lighted "Night Owls."

Policeman Edward Keating, of the East Twenty-second street station, with his uniform coat torn and several buttons missing, appeared in Yorkville Court this morning as complainant against a young man and woman named respectively Joseph Donnelly, twenty-one years, of 459 Third avenue, and Kate Daily, aged twenty-five, who refused to give her address.

He found them fighting and rolling on the sidewalk in front of a clothing store at Twenty-sixth street and Third avenue at 4 o'clock this morning. Donnelly claimed to be a waiter, while the woman said she was a soubrette in a Brooklyn theatre.

The spectacle of a man and woman scuffling together on the street attracted quite a crowd of "night owls," who formed a ring and encouraged the fighters. The noise they made brought Keating to the scene. He parted the fighters and held on to the man and woman.

While the policeman was questioning the soubrette suddenly became furious, and turning her attention to the officer, began to claw at him with her nails. To defend himself from her attack, Keating had to release the man and turn his attention to Kate. She kicked and scratched, and in the struggle she pulled off several buttons from the sleeve of his coat.

Another officer finally appeared on the scene, and the station-house. The soubrette fought the entire way. She was brought before Judge Voorsluys, Donnelly said the whole trouble was because he had refused to treat her to a drink.

He said that he was coming along the avenue when she accosted him and asked him to give her a whiskey. On his refusal he said she attacked him. Justice Voorsluys fined the soubrette $10 and Donnelly $5.

HAS A DUAL HUSBAND.

Mrs. Lederman's Allegation in Her Suit for Divorce.

Emma Lederman, of 187 Orchard street, has brought an action for an absolute divorce on the statutory grounds, through Lawyer Louis Steckler, of 275 Broadway, against her husband, Ernest Lederman.

The complaint states that the parties were married in February, 1891, and that shortly afterwards Lederman abandoned his wife, and in the year 1893 was discovered living with another woman in this city as his husband.

In the complaint it is stated that while she is positive that he is known as another woman's husband, she is unable to give his name, and that she has since then lived with him as her husband's wife, but, upon information, charges that the Christian name of the woman is "Lena."

The papers have been served upon Lederman, but up to the present time he has not interposed any defense.

WHOSE BABY GIRL?

Police Looking for the Woman Who Deserted Her in a Hotel.

If the richly dressed woman who left a two-months-old girl baby in the waiting-room of the Central Road Hotel, at 146 Liberty street, at 11 o'clock yesterday morning would return and claim the child, the police would be very glad to see her.

The police are trying to discover the whereabouts of the mother, but so far have not succeeded. The child, which is handsomely dressed, was taken to Police Headquarters yesterday afternoon by Lena Weckesser, one of the servants in the hotel, and this morning was removed to the Ward's Island infant asylum.

"The World's" New Uptown Office.

"The World's" Uptown Office has moved into its new quarters at the junction of Broadway and Sixth avenue, at the corner of the five-story tenement-house at 67 Beach street early this morning. The store is owned by Mrs. Lyons, who lives in the room behind it with her two-year-old daughter.

Mrs. Lyons awoke, smelled smoke and found that the fire was in flames. She caught her child in her arms and ran to the front door. But that door was locked, and she had to break through the flames were creeping nearer and nearer the woman and child, and Mrs. Lyons was jumping on the bed beside her.

Policeman McKeever arrived, battered the door down, and dragged mother and child out.

The people in the upper part of the house into a wild panic before they got out. The flames were confined to the ground floor and did $50 damage.

A fire that started in the tenement-house at 215 Henry street broke out at 4 o'clock this morning in the apartments of Henry Keaton, on the first floor. It was caused by his children playing with matches. An alarm was turned in and the fire ended when before any considerable damage had been done.

A fire that did $150 damage started in the apartments of A. Fougall, on the top floor of the three-story tenement-house, 233 West Thirty-third street, at 8 o'clock this morning. The cause and insurance are unknown.

THIS SOUBRETTE A FIGHTER.

First Fought a Waiter and Then a Policeman.

An Early Morning Row That De-lighted "Night Owls."

Policeman Edward Keating, of the East Twenty-second street station, with his uniform coat torn and several buttons missing, appeared in Yorkville Court this morning as complainant against a young man and woman named respectively Joseph Donnelly, twenty-one years, of 459 Third avenue, and Kate Daily, aged twenty-five, who refused to give her address.

He found them fighting and rolling on the sidewalk in front of a clothing store at Twenty-sixth street and Third avenue at 4 o'clock this morning. Donnelly claimed to be a waiter, while the woman said she was a soubrette in a Brooklyn theatre.

The spectacle of a man and woman scuffling together on the street attracted quite a crowd of "night owls," who formed a ring and encouraged the fighters. The noise they made brought Keating to the scene. He parted the fighters and held on to the man and woman.

While the policeman was questioning the soubrette suddenly became furious, and turning her attention to the officer, began to claw at him with her nails. To defend himself from her attack, Keating had to release the man and turn his attention to Kate. She kicked and scratched, and in the struggle she pulled off several buttons from the sleeve of his coat.

Another officer finally appeared on the scene, and the station-house. The soubrette fought the entire way. She was brought before Judge Voorsluys, Donnelly said the whole trouble was because he had refused to treat her to a drink.

He said that he was coming along the avenue when she accosted him and asked him to give her a whiskey. On his refusal he said she attacked him. Justice Voorsluys fined the soubrette $10 and Donnelly $5.

HAS A DUAL HUSBAND.

Mrs. Lederman's Allegation in Her Suit for Divorce.

Emma Lederman, of 187 Orchard street, has brought an action for an absolute divorce on the statutory grounds, through Lawyer Louis Steckler, of 275 Broadway, against her husband, Ernest Lederman.

The complaint states that the parties were married in February, 1891, and that shortly afterwards Lederman abandoned his wife, and in the year 1893 was discovered living with another woman in this city as his husband.

In the complaint it is stated that while she is positive that he is known as another woman's husband, she is unable to give his name, and that she has since then lived with him as her husband's wife, but, upon information, charges that the Christian name of the woman is "Lena."

The papers have been served upon Lederman, but up to the present time he has not interposed any defense.

WHOSE BABY GIRL?

Police Looking for the Woman Who Deserted Her in a Hotel.

If the richly dressed woman who left a two-months-old girl baby in the waiting-room of the Central Road Hotel, at 146 Liberty street, at 11 o'clock yesterday morning would return and claim the child, the police would be very glad to see her.

The police are trying to discover the whereabouts of the mother, but so far have not succeeded. The child, which is handsomely dressed, was taken to Police Headquarters yesterday afternoon by Lena Weckesser, one of the servants in the hotel, and this morning was removed to the Ward's Island infant asylum.

"The World's" New Uptown Office.

"The World's" Uptown Office has moved into its new quarters at the junction of Broadway and Sixth avenue, at the corner of the five-story tenement-house at 67 Beach street early this morning. The store is owned by Mrs. Lyons, who lives in the room behind it with her two-year-old daughter.

Mrs. Lyons awoke, smelled smoke and found that the fire was in flames. She caught her child in her arms and ran to the front door. But that door was locked, and she had to break through the flames were creeping nearer and nearer the woman and child, and Mrs. Lyons was jumping on the bed beside her.

Policeman McKeever arrived, battered the door down, and dragged mother and child out.

The people in the upper part of the house into a wild panic before they got out. The flames were confined to the ground floor and did $50 damage.

A fire that started in the tenement-house at 215 Henry street broke out at 4 o'clock this morning in the apartments of Henry Keaton, on the first floor. It was caused by his children playing with matches. An alarm was turned in and the fire ended when before any considerable damage had been done.

A fire that did $150 damage started in the apartments of A. Fougall, on the top floor of the three-story tenement-house, 233 West Thirty-third street, at 8 o'clock this morning. The cause and insurance are unknown.

THIS SOUBRETTE A FIGHTER.

First Fought a Waiter and Then a Policeman.

An Early Morning Row That De-lighted "Night Owls."

Policeman Edward Keating, of the East Twenty-second street station, with his uniform coat torn and several buttons missing, appeared in Yorkville Court this morning as complainant against a young man and woman named respectively Joseph Donnelly, twenty-one years, of 459 Third avenue, and Kate Daily, aged twenty-five, who refused to give her address.

He found them fighting and rolling on the sidewalk in front of a clothing store at Twenty-sixth street and Third avenue at 4 o'clock this morning. Donnelly claimed to be a waiter, while the woman said she was a soubrette in a Brooklyn theatre.

The spectacle of a man and woman scuffling together on the street attracted quite a crowd of "night owls," who formed a ring and encouraged the fighters. The noise they made brought Keating to the scene. He parted the fighters and held on to the man and woman.

While the policeman was questioning the soubrette suddenly became furious, and turning her attention to the officer, began to claw at him with her nails. To defend himself from her attack, Keating had to release the man and turn his attention to Kate. She kicked and scratched, and in the struggle she pulled off several buttons from the sleeve of his coat.

Another officer finally appeared on the scene, and the station-house. The soubrette fought the entire way. She was brought before Judge Voorsluys, Donnelly said the whole trouble was because he had refused to treat her to a drink.

He said that he was coming along the avenue when she accosted him and asked him to give her a whiskey. On his refusal he said she attacked him. Justice Voorsluys fined the soubrette $10 and Donnelly $5.

HAS A DUAL HUSBAND.

Mrs. Lederman's Allegation in Her Suit for Divorce.

Emma Lederman, of 187 Orchard street, has brought an action for an absolute divorce on the statutory grounds, through Lawyer Louis Steckler, of 275 Broadway, against her husband, Ernest Lederman.

The complaint states that the parties were married in February, 1891, and that shortly afterwards Lederman abandoned his wife, and in the year 1893 was discovered living with another woman in this city as his husband.

In the complaint it is stated that while she is positive that he is known as another woman's husband, she is unable to give his name, and that she has since then lived with him as her husband's wife, but, upon information, charges that the Christian name of the woman is "Lena."

The papers have been served upon Lederman, but up to the present time he has not interposed any defense.

WHOSE BABY GIRL?

Police Looking for the Woman Who Deserted Her in a Hotel.

If the richly dressed woman who left a two-months-old girl baby in the waiting-room of the Central Road Hotel, at 146 Liberty street, at 11 o'clock yesterday morning would return and claim the child, the police would be very glad to see her.

The police are trying to discover the whereabouts of the mother, but so far have not succeeded. The child, which is handsomely dressed, was taken to Police Headquarters yesterday afternoon by Lena Weckesser, one of the servants in the hotel, and this morning was removed to the Ward's Island infant asylum.

"The World's" New Uptown Office.

"The World's" Uptown Office has moved into its new quarters at the junction of Broadway and Sixth avenue, at the corner of the five-story tenement-house at 67 Beach street early this morning. The store is owned by Mrs. Lyons, who lives in the room behind it with her two-year-old daughter.

Mrs. Lyons awoke, smelled smoke and found that the fire was in flames. She caught her child in her arms and ran to the front door. But that door was locked, and she had to break through the flames were creeping nearer and nearer the woman and child, and Mrs. Lyons was jumping on the bed beside her.

Policeman McKeever arrived, battered the door down, and dragged mother and child out.

The people in the upper part of the house into a wild panic before they got out. The flames were confined to the ground floor and did $50 damage.

A fire that started in the tenement-house at 215 Henry street broke out at 4 o'clock this morning in the apartments of Henry Keaton, on the first floor. It was caused by his children playing with matches. An alarm was turned in and the fire ended when before any considerable damage had been done.

A fire that did $150 damage started in the apartments of A. Fougall, on the top floor of the three-story tenement-house, 233 West Thirty-third street, at 8 o'clock this morning. The cause and insurance are unknown.

THIS SOUBRETTE A FIGHTER.

First Fought a Waiter and Then a Policeman.

An Early Morning Row That De-lighted "Night Owls."

Policeman Edward Keating, of the East Twenty-second street station, with his uniform coat torn and several buttons missing, appeared in Yorkville Court this morning as complainant against a young man and woman named respectively Joseph Donnelly, twenty-one years, of 459 Third avenue, and Kate Daily, aged twenty-five, who refused to give her address.

He found them fighting and rolling on the sidewalk in front of a clothing store at Twenty-sixth street and Third avenue at 4 o'clock this morning. Donnelly claimed to be a waiter, while the woman said she was a soubrette in a Brooklyn theatre.

The spectacle of a man and woman scuffling together on the street attracted quite a crowd of "night owls," who formed a ring and encouraged the fighters. The noise they